

BRANDI CARSON is a passionate, detailed-oriented Event Designer with a penchant for elegance and excellence. Before founding Posh & Private with her husband Brandon, Brandi gained valuable experience working at Accenture LLP where she performed project management and management consulting work. From there, her love for event design and planning led her to the White House Social Office, where she assisted with the development of the design concepts for the Annual Holiday receptions. Her philosophy on special events is "you only have one chance to get it right - so put your best foot forward each and every time."

For Brandi, being a devoted wife is as important as designing a great event but the two go hand in hand. She considers working side by side with her husband, not only as marriage partners, but as business partners to be an extremely gratifying experience. Designing an event and creating and executing a plan with perfection is her specialty and working in tandem with her husband, makes the business side of her work that much more fulfilling.

Brandi holds a Bachelors degree in Economics from the illustrious Spelman College and a Masters Degree in Tourism Administration with a concentration in Event and Meeting Management from the distinguished George Washington University. Nestled in the Upper Kirby area of Houston, some of Brandi's favorite activities in the city include attending Sushi Happy Hours, picking up a Grande Caramel Macchiato from the many Starbucks to choose from or perusing the shops at the Houston Galleria.

www.PoshAndPrivate.com
@BrandiNCarson

BRANDON J. CARSON is the 21st Century's version of a Christian Renaissance man. He holds a cadre of skills that don't limit themselves to his knack for problem solving; technical understanding, and designing and planning events.

Every event Brandon plans is met with a true diversity and a wealth of problem solving know-how. Hailing from Houston, Texas, but having lived in several regions of the country, he has truly developed a knack for engaging various types of clients and ascertaining their needs in order to surpass their expectations.

Before teaming with his wife Brandi to found Posh & Private Event Design, Brandon refined his event planning abilities during his undergraduate years at Morehouse College, through organizing on-campus events to enhance the student experience. During his graduate studies at Carnegie Mellon University, he chaired a special event planning committee who designed and planned annual recognition galas for the university with approximately 350 attendees. Afterward, while working at the Department of Defense he organized ceremonies and special events as a part of his role as Chief of Marketing and Strategic Planning.

Brandon is an accomplished public speaker who inspires youth, but by far, his biggest passion is his loving relationship with his wife. So unique but yet so down to earth, Brandon J. Carson is known to friends and family simply as BC.

www.PoshAndPrivate.com
@BrandonJCarson

BRANDON